

4,3,2,1: It's Time to Break Up with Your VPN

2020 has proven to be a year of change – whether welcome or not. What better time than now to make a change that you can control and call it quits with your VPN?

4 Surprising Ways a VPN is Harming Your Productivity

- A VPN is clunky and requires more steps, eating away at billable hours
- VPNs slow your connection, doing more harm than good as seconds add to minutes and hours
- A VPN requires valuable time and resources to maintain
- Network IP space and existing home equipment may create unforeseen challenges

3 Key Reasons Law Firms Are Ditching Their VPN

- Security breaches - VPNs create a back door to your network
- Difficult to scale as the firm grows
- Can be accessed through unmanaged devices which can be easily compromised

2 Options to Consider When Planning for the Future

- Keep doing what you've always done and continue to be frustrated
- Switch to a seamless cloud experience and gain freedom from unreliability

1 Easy Answer

Switch to NetDocuments and enjoy organized, easy-to-find content that is always safe, compliant, and available to inspire your best work.

Schedule a demo of NetDocuments today >