

“The categorisation of documents hadn’t taken place, which was impacting on internal productivity. Managing and storing documents within Microsoft Exchange just wasn’t a sustainable way to work,” says Julie Berry IT Partner at Saffery Champness. “This way of working posed a large amount of strain on employees’ email inboxes and time was often wasted working out who had what document, and where to find it. This resulted in time being spent to find the most up-to-date version, creating increased frustration amongst staff.”

Solution: A Central and Secure Cloud Platform to Share, Manage and Collaborate on Documents

To continue making its document and email management more efficient and to continue to deliver a great client service, Saffery Champness needed a central and secure platform to share, manage and collaborate on documents.

As a firm with a ‘cloud-first’ strategy, Saffery Champness was looking for a cloud-based document management system to enable greater flexibility and agility. “We are rapidly growing and needed a solution to support this, helping staff to manage their workload efficiently, whether they are working in the office or remotely,” says Berry.

A Cloud Platform to Support Collaboration and the Categorisation and Centralisation of Documents

Saffery Champness evaluated several specialist document management solutions before selecting NetDocuments, which it believed offered the best package in terms of ease-of-use, flexibility and security. “Our top priority was finding a secure cloud-based platform to support collaboration and the categorisation and centralisation of our documents.

collaborate effectively, increasing productivity and adding value to the work that they do. “We no longer have to spend a lot of time searching for documents across multiple systems, as we are now able to create fully searchable matter files for each of our clients, ensuring each document is in the right place and categorised correctly,” says Berry.

Using NetDocuments has also significantly improved email management across the company. “With NetDocuments, staff are still able to use the applications they are used to, such as Outlook, and further regain control of their inboxes. NetDocuments has helped streamline work and increase productivity across the whole business,” added Berry.

In addition to improving process and efficiency, NetDocuments has also helped Saffery Champness enhance its security and compliance. “We now have the ability to share documents through secure links which not only reduces email traffic but gives us and our clients peace of mind knowing what we share is 100% secure. NetDocuments also keeps data protected across the organisation, helping to comply with policies such as GDPR by deleting information when we no longer need it,” added Berry.

Enabling better work life balance for employees

Over 800 people, including Saffery Champness staff and partners are now using NetDocuments via desktop, laptop, mobile and tablet devices. “Enabling staff to access our documents from anywhere using their device of choice is becoming increasingly important, especially as working practices change. We think this is crucial for employee productivity and happiness as we look to attract and retain the best talent.”

With NetDocuments, Saffery Champness now has a future-proof document and email management platform to support its growth, enabling the company to provide an enhanced experience to employees and clients alike.
